HAQ will complete 16 years as a non-profit organisation with a large vision and dream for realising every right for every child, in 2014.

Having started its work in October 1998 and being formally registered under the Societies Registration Act in June 1999, HAQ has dedicated itself to the recognition, promotion and protection of the rights of all children.

HAQ continues to use its Children and Governance programme as a means of ensuring that child rights occupy an important place on the agenda of Indian Politics, planning and implementation.

Through its Child Protection programme, HAQ targets those children that are the most vulnerable and provides them with free legal aid, psychosocial counselling, and also uses campaigns & capacity building as tools to spread awareness.

CHILDREN AND GOVERNANCE

Budget for Children (BfC)

This was the very first activity that we undertook. HAQ's BfC (Budgets for Children analysis) work has been one of its most consistent activities since 2001. It has since expanded into budget analysis in different states in partnership with local organisations. At present BfC work is being done in Assam, Delhi and also for the National Budget. The BfC work in Madhya Pradesh has come to an end.

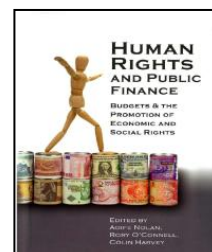

As with every year HAQ undertook a quick analysis of the Union Budget after the Interim Budget was presented on 17th February 2014. It was circulated by email and is uploaded on our website. We are at present in the process of completing the consolidated report of the Union Budget for the past 5 years.

This year saw the completion of five year analysis of BfC report for Delhi, Andhra Pradesh (in partnership with MV Foundation), West Bengal (in partnership with SPAN) and Assam (in partnership with North Eastern Social Research Centre (NESRC)).

Currently HAQ is working on BfC (at the national level, in Delhi. This work is supported by Child Rights and You. The BfC in Assam has been undertaken with NESRC and was supported by Terres des Hommes (tdh) Germany. It now plans to enter a new phase of partnership with NESRC in Nagaland, Meghalaya and Tripura- states where such work has never been attempted, while continuing BfC in Assam.

Having gained experience at tracking the fund flow of Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan (SSA) in the last phase of BfC work, HAQ chose to track the fund flow and implementation of the centrally sponsored Integrated Child Protection Scheme (ICPS) and the implementation of Juvenile Justice. It was decided that for this, two districts would be selected in each of the states.

In the year 2013, taking the Budget for Children (BfC) work a step further, Enakshi Ganguly Thukral's article "Budget for Children" featured in a book titled "Human Rights and Public Finance", published by Hart Publishing Co.

West Bengal and Andhra Pradesh

Although the BfC project supported by Ford Foundation in these two states had come to an end, the consolidated reports were being finalized at the time of the last annual meeting. These reports have since been published.

A release of the report along with a meeting of NGOs to share the findings was organised in Kolkata on 21st June, 2013, at the Academy of Fine Arts (Conference Hall), Kolkata. The organisations decided to form an informal network and continue the work around BfC in West Bengal.

With the political situation in turmoil over the bifurcation of the state into Telengana and Andhra Pradesh, MV Foundation said that it was not possible to undertake advocacy on BfC.

Delhi

The Delhi State Budget for the financial year 2013-14 was presented on the 20th of March, 2013. HAQ did a quick analysis of the budget and produced a handout. Based on the poor turnout at the interface organised last year, this year an attempt was made to contact individual MLAs personally and meet them. At the same time copies of the budget report were sent to all the MLAs by post, which were followed up with individual phone calls.

Unfortunately the response once again, was very discouraging. While most MLAs said they were not interested in children's issues, some said that given the very short duration of the assembly, pending elections, they are unable to raise these issues.

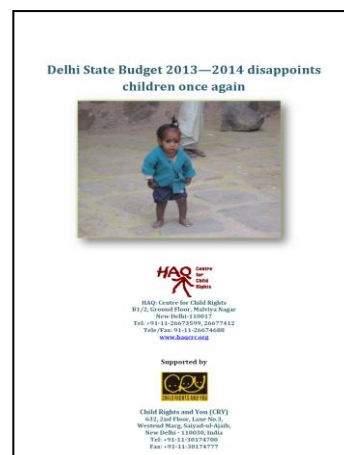

HAQ also undertook a BfC analysis from the period 2008-2009 to 2012-2013 on the Delhi State Budget. A consolidated report was prepared and published and the same was uploaded on HAQ's website.

For dissemination of the report, the budget team met and shared the BfC report with Mr. Sat Prakash Rana, an MLA from Dwarka and requested him to take up the issue further in the Assembly.

The team also met and presented the key findings of the study to the Chairperson of DCPCR Mr. Arun Mathur and all the other members of Delhi Commission for the Protection of Child Rights (DCPCR). The report was also shared with Dr. Kiran Walia (Former Women and Child Development Minister, Govt. of Delhi), Dr. Harsh Vardhan (MLA and Former Health and Education Minister, Govt. of Delhi) as well as some other Civil Society Organisations.

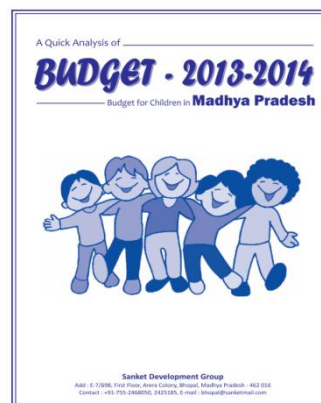

Copies of the report were shared with CRY who has distributed it to all its partners and the network it supports in Delhi. It is expected that these organisations will use the report and its findings for their own work at the local level.

However, the unstable political situation in Delhi, with elections and the fall of the AAP government after which a government is yet to be formed, has made it difficult to undertake any sustained advocacy.

Madhya Pradesh

The state budget of Madhya Pradesh was presented on 22nd March 2013. HAQ, in close partnership with Sanket Development Group (a Bhopal based organisation) prepared a quick budget analysis of the State Budget of Madhya Pradesh, copies of which were printed and disseminated among various stakeholders and civil society organisations, and those organisations supported by CRY and the network it supports. A workshop was also organised on 31st August 2013 at Hotel

Royal Vilas, Bhopal in which civil society organisations working on child rights participated.

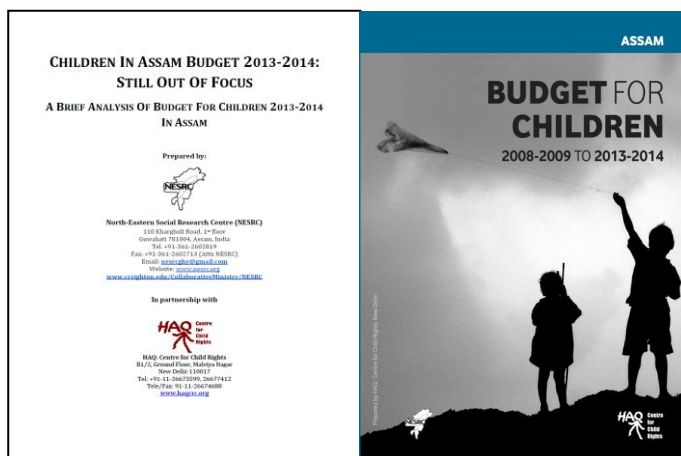

The findings of the child budget analysis were also shared with print and electronic media by Sanket.

However, this initiative in Madhya Pradesh was discontinued by CRY in December 2013.

Assam

Our longstanding partner for BfC analysis in Assam has been the North Eastern Social Research Centre (NESRC). In June 2013, the HAQ team visited NESRC and published child budget analysis of the State Budget 2013-14. This was presented before various government officials and departments like the Health Department, Finance Department, Department of Social Welfare, Department of labour, State Child Protection Society etc.

This was also shared with leading NGOs such as the Assam branch of the Indian Council for Child Welfare (Guwahati) and the Chairperson of the Assam State Commission for the Protection of Child Rights (ASCPCR). The analysis was uploaded on HAQ's website as well.

In November 2013, HAQ and NESRC published the comprehensive BfC report for six years prepared a detailed child budget analysis of six years. It was released on the 6th November 2013 at an interface organised at the Pragati Manor in Guwahati. During the interface, the findings of the report were presented through an 'Audio-visual presentation', which was also appreciated by the participants

This was attended by Mr. Akon Bora (Minister, Department of Social Welfare, Govt. of Assam) was invited as the chief guest to launch the report. Mr. Subhas Das (Chief Secretary, Department of Education, Govt. of Assam), Dr. Virginius Xaxa (Member, National Advisory Council), Ms. Lina Das (Member Secretary, ASCPCR). Representatives of various reputed NGOs and CWC members participated in this interface and shared their views on the findings of the analysis. While appreciating HAQ's and NESRC's efforts, a strong need for such kind of analysis was voiced by the participants as well as guests during the interface.

The AV and the report have been circulated to the civil. The interface was covered by the media.

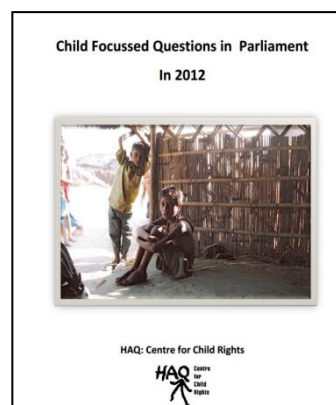

The report was shared with some key government officials. A copy of the report was also given to Mr. Bhubaneswar Kalita (MP, Rajya Sabha).

Parliamentary Watch

HAQ has been undertaking analysis of the parliamentary questions and debates for over 10 years. For several years, a series- Says a Child..Who Speaks for my Rights was published? However, although it was academically a good exercise and often appreciated, over the years we felt that the NGOs and parliamentarians were not using the reports in the way we had anticipated.

At the same time, monitoring the parliament is critical to understanding children and governance and holding elected members accountable. Therefore we have decided to continue with the analysis, but make a very short analysis that is circulated only through the internet.

An analysis of the child focused questions raised in all the sessions of both Lok Sabha and Rajya Sabha during the year 2012 was undertaken and this circulated by email and uploaded on HAQ's website in September 2013.

Since January 2014, HAQ is working as a consultant to Save the Children, India to, analyse questions and answers related to Reproductive, Maternal, Newborn ,Child and Adolescent Health (RMNCH+A), which were raised by legislators in Parliament sessions as well as in the legislative assemblies in Uttar Pradesh and Bihar State Assemblies.

Preventing Child Marriage through Strengthening Governance Systems

The implementation of a project on prevention of child marriage through the strengthening of existing governance systems in two states – West Bengal (WB) and Andhra Pradesh (AP) has continued. The project is being implemented with partner organisations in the states- Jabala in WB and MV Foundation (MVF) in AP. This project is jointly supported by the MacArthur Foundation and the Ford Foundation.

Although the project is being implemented in selected 24 Gram Panchayats in 2 districts each of the two states, there has been impact seen beyond the project area. Because of the wider impact of the project in creation of awareness and prevention of child marriages, government officials have requested the project team to give inputs outside the project area in both the states.

There has been increased involvement of the stakeholders from the government systems in preventing child marriages and more members in the community are joining the activities of the project. As a result review meetings on child marriage situation are being conducted by government officials and community level committees. Adolescent Girls Groups and male youth groups have become stronger in taking initiative by becoming the source of information on possible child marriages. The Child Protection Committees or Village Level Child Marriage Prohibition Committees are equally important sources for information on possible child marriages. Action is taken on getting information of possible cases of child marriage and other child rights violations jointly by the child protection committees at the village and block levels, other community members, government officials and the project team. The project has been able to stop several child marriages from taking place.

Recognising that prevention of child marriage is closely connected with other violations of child rights and hence a comprehensive approach needs to be adopted, during the meetings with various stakeholders other issues such as school dropouts, child trafficking, falling sex ratio, supply of nutrition in the Integrated Child Development Services Scheme to the adolescent girls and seasonal child labour, health cards and scholarships, etc. are the other issues which are also taken up.

One of the biggest successes of the project has been the extent to which it has come to be recognised that child marriage must be prevented not just because it is a social evil that affects the health of girls, but because it is a violation of the right to protection of children and a criminal act.

This is not to say that all child marriages in the project areas could be prevented. Indeed, many of the parents who agreed to not marry their girls in presence of the government official to postpone or cancel the child marriage have found out ways to perform the child marriage in following days. At times, it was done within 24 hours without the knowledge of even the neighborhood. There is still a long way to go before the governance system and the community become self sufficient to deal with child marriage.

The following are some of the highlights of the activities of the last year:

Sharing Experience and Learning meeting:

The 'Sharing of Experience and Learning' (25-26 July) was organised in New Delhi. It brought together the entire team from the two states.

This was a wonderful experience for the field team to not just be able to showcase their work, but to also learn about the work in the other state.

Sharing Experience and Learning meeting with project teams and a representative from MacArthur

Mid Project Evaluation

Leher, NGO (Co-Founded by Nicole Rangel and Kajol Menon) was engaged for the Mid Project Evaluation as they have a strong background in child protection. Followed by the field visits, a de-briefing meeting was organised with both of the partner NGOs to share a draft of the Evaluation Report. This has enabled us to identify activities for the remaining project period.

Film on Project work

During the partners meeting in July 25-26, 2013, it was suggested that HAQ make a film on the project highlighting the importance and success of convergence of all stakeholders in prevention on child marriage.

A film titled, 'Come Together', was scripted and directed by Mr. Avijit Dutt (a senior Director and Actor).

All the actors of the film are from in and around the village, where a film had never been shot before, but they are all close to the issue. Several of them are persons who work on preventing child marriages in their area, in their official capacity or as members of the community. It is important that the role of the two girls, one who is getting married and the one who works to stop it are both active members of the adolescent girls group of the school; the woman who plays the role of the mother of one of the girls was married very young and is today a Panchayat member and a strong ally of our project; the role of the father of the bride is played by the Secretary of the school where the girls study and a supporter of the adolescent girls group and the initiative they take to prevent child marriages. It is almost coincidental that all the women characters in the film were child brides themselves, and one of them was deserted as a young girl with two children to bring up. It is significant that a just a few days before the shooting of the film, the girls true to the characters they have played in the film, were involved in stopping the marriage of one of their class-mates along with other members of the group.

Other Notable Achievements:

- The HAQ team accompanied by the State Coordinator of MVF visited the joint initiative of UNICEF and Government Karnataka for addressing child marriage in Raichur District of Karnataka. This programme has been running for a longer period and has a similar strategy to the current project by HAQ and its partners.
- Dasra has reviewed 300 non-profits to identify 10 promising organisations committed to ending this practice in India and which, with philanthropic investment can create impact at scale. HAQ is one of them.
- The Kiawah Trust, U.K along with Dasra had visited HAQ under their The Dasra Girls Alliance, a five-year initiative in collaboration with USAID. A few other agencies have also approached HAQ to understand the child marriage and child protection scenario in India and also to understand the project itself. There has been constant learning and exchange on this issue.
- HAQ featured as one of the case studies in the report ‘Protecting the Girl Child: using the law to end child, early and forced marriage and related human rights violations’, by Equality Now, UK (May 2013).
- The project experience was submitted to an initiative of Ministry of Women and Child Development and UNICEF in documenting best practices on child protection in general and ICPS in particular. The document is not public as yet.
- Several meetings around gender and evaluation, adolescent girls and child marriage were attended by HAQ and often accompanied by presentations on the project.
- The issue of child marriage was included as a chapter in the school text books in AP, with a story from the project villages.
- Child Marriage as an issue was included in the panchayat elections in WB and a Self Declaration for protecting Child Rights was ensured from the contestant for the post of Gram Panchayat Sarpanch in AP.
- There is a dedicated page on HAQ’s website which is still being developed. Realising the importance of social media, a Facebook page ‘Ending Child Marriage: Learning Together and Going Ahead’ has also been started.

Promotion and Protection of Rights of Children in the Mining Sector

There are many children across India growing up in and around the mining areas. Mining affects their lives directly or indirectly. It is these children that this project is about. We refer to them as the Mining Children. Following the research done for a study titled 'India's childhood in the Pits'- A Report on the Impacts of Mining on Children in India which was published in 2010, follow-up action was initiated with the support of Terre des Hommes (Germany). This project, being undertaken in partnership with SAMATA based in Vishakhapatnam, Andhra Pradesh, began in 2012. It lays emphasis on bringing together child rights organisations along with those organisations which work on mining to help them gain knowledge, build skills required to work on the issue through IEC materials, trainings, networking and advocacy. The project will be carried out in 6 states over a period of 3 years. A Community Resource Guide on Children and Mining has been prepared which is being used to conduct trainings.

The project was started in April 2012. In the last year two state-level Training of Trainers have been organised at Angul in Odisha and Chiabasa in Jharkhand. Regional trainings were also organised at Jharsuguda in Odisha, Kolar in Karnataka and in Jharkhand the trainings were conducted at Ghatsila and Katras. This was followed by two field visits were undertaken in Odisha and Jharkhand.

One round table conference was organised in Karnataka. Contacts have been established with child rights organisations that can be a part of this project.

Also, two state-level round table conferences in the states of Odisha and Jharkhand with key stake holders have been planned for May 2014.

Children's Manifesto

HAQ drafted a children's manifesto which it shared with all the major networks and organisations, several of whom came on board to jointly present the manifesto.

This manifesto was shared with all major political parties.

POLICY AND LAW ADVOCACY

National Policy for Children (member of the drafting group)

On 26 April 2013 the Government of India notified the National Policy for Children. Enakshi Ganguly was a member of the drafting committee that had been set up by the government.

Jammu and Kashmir Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children Act), 2013, Rules

In 2013, Bharti Ali was part of the Jammu and Kashmir Juvenile Justice Rules Drafting Committee. On 24th March 2014, the rules were notified.

Active Participation in Judicial Forums

Bharti Ali continues to be member of the Delhi State Legal Services Authority (DSLSA) for the second term. She has been drawing attention of the DSLSA on issues concerning victim compensation for child survivors of sexual abuse and child-friendliness of the POCSO Courts. This has helped expedite the victim compensation process in the cases dealt by HAQ. A revised victim compensation scheme has been formulated by DSLSA, which also applies to victims of child sexual abuse, who otherwise had to wait for compensation until the concerned Court gave an order in this regard. This has also helped the survivors in many of the cases being dealt by HAQ.

As part of the Supervision Committee for Observation Homes, complaints or distress calls from aggrieved parents/guardians continue to be received and addressed.

Monitoring and strengthening implementation of child justice systems through Strategic Litigation

Strategic litigation is now a well established component of HAQ's work on monitoring and strengthening implementation of juvenile justice and child justice in India. Experience with legal aid and counselling has led to a series of litigation to draw attention to anomalies in justice delivery and implementation of laws relating to children.

Last year, HAQ was able to get some positive results important through judgements pronounced by the Supreme Court and the Delhi High Court in cases where HAQ had intervened.

The Supreme Court of India upheld the constitutional validity of the JJ Act in both Salil Bali vs. Union of India [WP (C) NO. 10 OF 2013] and Subramaniam Swamy vs. Union of India [Special Leave Petition (Crl.) No. 1953 of 2013] and children have been protected from being treated as adult criminals on the basis of gravity of offences committed by them.

The confusion caused by multiplicity of laws on registration and licensing of orphanages stands resolved in Delhi and all state governments can use the judgement in WP (C) 9590/2009 to stop using laws other than the JJ Act for purposes of recognition and registration of institutions keeping children in need of care and protection and children in conflict with the law. HAQ was an intervener in this case as a result of its petition seeking compliance by Arya Anathalaya and its sister institutions on child protection standards after reports of child sexual abuse.

Some other litigation too has led to positive actions on different fronts. For example, members of HAQ's child protection team have been assisting the NCPCR in carrying out inspections of homes for children in the NCT of Delhi [WP (Crl) 694/2012]. As part of orders of the High Court of Delhi in WP (C) 8889/2011, team members from HAQ have been assisting the NCPCR in carrying out visits to the jails and to homes for children in the NCT of Delhi.

At the same time, HAQ has also been litigating for a transparent and proper procedure for selection of chairperson and members to the NCPCR. After a five year long legal battle in the High Court of Delhi and an ongoing case in the Supreme Court of India the Ministry of Women and Child Development has finally revised the rules governing the NCPCR elaborating on the eligibility criteria and ensuring a public advertisement inviting applications from interested persons. However, given the inadequacy of the amended rules in terms of setting out the procedure for determining eminence and ability of the candidates and for making the process more transparent, HAQ, along with some other organisations, is contemplating further litigation.

There are fourteen cases that HAQ has filed or intervened in the High Court of Delhi and the Supreme Court of India.

Cases in the Supreme Court of India or Delhi High Court as of March 2014 include:

While the matter is pending disposal, the Supreme Court looked into the merits of HAQ's application drawing attention to the need for proper procedures for selection and appointment of Chairperson and Members to the NCPCR and accordingly directed the Ministry of Women and Child Development to put out a public advertisement inviting applications for these positions and to make changes in the Rules for the Commission with respect to the eligibility criteria and selection process.

CHILD PROTECTION

Legal Aid, Rehabilitation Support and Counselling

HAQ continues its work of providing psychosocial support to children in conflict with law and child victims of sexual abuse. Counsellors from HAQ's child protection team make weekly visits to both the Juvenile Justice Boards, where cases of children in conflict with the law requiring counselling are marked to them through the orders of the Board. Counselling sessions are taken with the overall aim of rehabilitation. Parents/guardians of the children are met as often as possible, in order to ensure that the progress is made even when the child returns to his/her home environment. HAQ no longer needs to provide legal support to these children, as there is now an adequate presence of legal aid lawyers present at both the Juvenile Justice Boards.

However, HAQ continues with its legal aid and counselling support to those children who are victims of violence, sexual abuse and exploitation. Our intervention is no longer contained to just legal aid and counselling, as there was the need to go one step further and help children and their families' access emergency medical attention, monetary compensation and long term educational support. Timely assistance and support helps in healing and rehabilitation of children.

The following table gives the details of legal aid and support provided by HAQ since 2005.

*In some cases, we have provided the children with counselling as well as legal aid and economic support. Although this leads to double counting in some cases, in effect each service provided is distinct and through staff specializing in different areas.

Support to Survivors of Child Sexual Abuse

HAQ continues its partnership with Centre to Secure Justice (CSJ) started in March 2013, with the aim of making holistic justice more accessible and effective, for those who are victims of sexual abuse. Through this partnership HAQ has been providing psychological counselling as well as other forms of support to children who are survivors of sexual assault, and their families. Legal aid and representation is provided by CSJ. However, HAQ's collaboration with CSJ is limited to cases of child rape in the South District.

Apart from this, HAQ also takes up cases from other parts of Delhi and cases where boys are victimized. These cases come to us through referrals from the Child Welfare Committees, NGOs and concerned individuals, or sometimes the families of the victims approach HAQ directly.

Support Group of Parents of Survivors of CSA

In order to have effective psychological and social rehabilitation, we provide counselling and support, not only for the children, but also to their families to help the families deal with the emotional trauma. In December 2013 HAQ facilitated the setting up of a support group of parents whose children have been sexually abused. The families responded positively to this idea. Subsequently two meetings have been held in HAQ's office. The group is still unstructured and at a nascent stage.

Technical Support to Project on Role of Fathers in Child Protection for CHSJ

HAQ continues its partnership with Centre for Health and Social Justice (CHSJ)'s project titled "Fathers Care". This project started with CHSJ in April 2012 and it will continue till December 2014. The project is aimed at building a campaign on exploring the role of men as fathers in protecting child rights. HAQ facilitated the Review workshop of the project in Bhopal and Lucknow in May 2013. In October 2013, HAQ conducted a Capacity Building workshop in Ranchi and also participated in a Forum to Engage Men (FEM) in December 2013. HAQ also participated in a two day review meeting on the 'Fathers Care Campaign' in March 2014. HAQ is also part of the organizing committee of the 2nd 'MenEngage Global Symposium 2014: Men and Boys for Gender Justice', to be held in November 2014.

Life Skills Training and other interventions for Rehabilitation of girls in Nirmal Chhaya- a State run children's home in Delhi

Since the year 2009, HAQ: Centre for Child Rights has continued its involvement with Nirmal Chhaya home for girls. Since September 2012, the visits have been made on a bi-monthly basis, by HAQ's in house counsellor and a consultant. Going one step further, in June 2013, a 12 day Summer Programme was conducted at the home, which focused on carrying forward our ongoing sessions on hygiene, having art and play sessions and building general awareness.

Given the large number of children in the home, there is always a mix of different groups such as different ages, girls who are pregnant, runaways and children with special needs. Our interaction with these girls, through informal counselling and group interactions, aims to reduce any sense of alienation they might feel, as well as to put them at ease.

Newcomers to the home often feel unable to adjust to the largely indifferent nature of the home, and find it hard to make friends. We try and get them involved in our activities, and make them feel welcome.

There are also children in the age group of 0-5 years and at the current time a majority of the children in this age group are in the special needs category, and have disabilities ranging from speech and hearing impairments to neurological and developmental disorders. However, we still try and get as many as we can to participate in our activities, in order to provide them with stimulation. Water based activities, and colouring are some areas where the small children are effectively involved.

Recreational activities using art, games continued as usual. In order to provide the girls with a constructive use of their time and help them create a warmer living atmosphere for themselves, we initiated an Art Project .The girls chose what they would like to see around them, came up with their own designs and started to paint the same with great enthusiasm. Involving the other girls, one of the designs of a 'tree man' was selected and painted on one of the walls in the courtyard, next to the dining hall.

While recreational activities will continue to remain an integral part of our Nirmal Chayya Programme, we have sensed the need to focus our work on behaviour change and self – development. The staff has also showed their appreciation towards our constant efforts and their involvement in activities helps to improve their relationship with the girls, and brings fresh vigour to the activities.

Life-skill education

Our life skills' training with the girls in the age group of 14-18 years continues and the Intervention this year was focused on Hygiene. A curriculum was created which focused on the concept of microbes, vector transmission, and good habits like hand washing and scrubbing. Using intensive sessions, recaps, prominently displaying aids related to hand washing and organizing plays in the home on hygiene, we helped girls understand the various dimensions of hygiene.

Academic Programme

The Academic Programme started in October 2013 in order to facilitate the crucial need for support to children dealing with the formal and demanding education system. The garnered staff support and a group of volunteers were organised to help teach the girls. More than 50 girls in the home from a total of 70 joined in.

The programme resumed again on 25th Jan i.e. the second quarter, with a fresh intake of volunteers. A continual stress on conceptual clarity, understanding the language of exam questions, linking themes for better understanding, motivating girls to mark difficult areas, giving home tasks, getting in sample papers were some ways in which academic support was offered.

Our visits are always eagerly awaited and many girls have come to see us as a support system, since we provide them with a forum where they can discuss with us, any issues that they face.

TRAINING AND CAPACITY BUILDING

HAQ is regularly called by government agencies, judicial academies, police and NGOs to undertake training on child rights issues and laws concerning children. In the reporting period, 83 trainings have been conducted on child rights, child trafficking, child protection, juvenile justice, etc. for law enforcement officials, members of the judiciary, civil society groups and communities associated with various NGOs.

Police Training

HAQ undertakes police trainings at the Police Station level in the Outer District as well as North West District in Delhi on Mondays and Fridays. This is part of the initiative of the Delhi Police to conduct in-service and ongoing capacity building and sensitisation of all its police personnel on laws concerning children.

In the month of February 2014, HAQ organised a 2 day training with Juvenile Welfare Officers of North West Police Stations, on the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection Act) 2000, and Protection of Children against Sexual Offenses Act 2012.

Training on Child Trafficking with Child Fund India

In the year 2013, HAQ engaged with Child Fund India on strengthening and capacity building of Police officials and local advocates on the issue of child trafficking in Rajasthan and Gujarat. HAQ has been working as consultant in these two states and conducted training sessions with Police officials and advocates on the issue of child trafficking and their roles in countering this rapidly increasing offence. As per the project requirement, HAQ's role was to conduct the trainings which had to be organised by Child Fund India at Udaipur in Rajasthan and at Himmatnagar in Gujarat. During the last one year, HAQ conducted three police trainings and four trainings with advocates of Udaipur Bar Association. Similarly, four Police trainings have been conducted at Himmatnagar, Gujarat and four trainings have been conducted with the advocates of Sabarkantha District Bar Association. Apart from these trainings, in the month of June, HAQ also facilitated a one day meeting with all the stakeholders in combating child trafficking at Udaipur. In addition to these trainings, HAQ also prepared two separate user manuals on laws and provisions in order to combat child trafficking. These manuals were specially designed for Police Officials and Advocates.

Orientation on Child Protection for CRY Staff and Partners

HAQ has been asked by CRY to provide orientation on child protection in general and Integrated Child Protection Scheme in particular. Three such orientations have taken place so far- for CRY northern region partners, Delhi partners and for CRY staff. Bharti Ali has been undertaking these orientations.

Budget for Children Training for Administrators in Sri Lanka

HAQ was invited by Save the Children, Sri Lanka office to undertake the training of provincial level administrators of the Southern Province in Sri Lanka. The main purpose of the training was to support the government officials to understand the concept of BfC in the context of the provincial budget and how to undertake BfC and their role as bureaucrats in taking forward the agenda for children using BfC. The training took place 11-13 of December in Matara and was attended by about 20 provincial administrators.

Developing training packages for different stakeholders to meet the growing demand for training on child protection across the country

- Two films were developed by HAQ for training purposes – one on the law dealing with sexual offences against children (the POCSO Act) and the other dealing with the Juvenile Justice Act. The films are in Hindi and have been tested and used in a few police trainings held in 2014. They have also been put up on HAQ’s website. These films form part of a series titled “Hastakshep”. HAQ plans to develop more films covering other child protection issues and laws in the future, as part of the same series.

On 7 March 2014, at a programme organised by the Department of Personnel and Training along with some other Ministries to mark the occasion of the International Women’s Day, excerpts from the film on POCSO Act were shown to an audience of 500 women employees of the Central Government. Due to shortage of time, the entire film could not be shown, but on demand from the audience, HAQ shared the weblink through which they could access it.

Feedback received from people who have watched the two films is very encouraging. While the film on the JJ Act is an animation, the other is a narration interspersed with a set of interviews of key stakeholders. There is now a demand for an animation on the POCSO Act as well.

- The Special Police Unit for Women and Children is developing a new training module for police training on laws relating to children. HAQ was asked to share all the training materials it has developed so far and was given the responsibility to put together training aids and materials such as films and FAQs on the POCSO Act as well as the JJ Act. This gives HAQ an opportunity to make the two films part of an institutionalised module. The FAQs will be based on solved case-studies, which will touch both the substantive aspects of the law and the procedural aspects. The films and the FAQs will form a comprehensive training package on the two laws.

- HAQ has also been asked by the Lal Bahadur Shastri National Academy of Administration to develop a training module on child rights for members of Civil Services in India. This gives HAQ yet another opportunity to get the two films prescribed as part of the curriculum.
