

ONLINE SAFETY

Limit information shared online

Information once shared online stays there forever

Do not share photographs that you are not comfortable being shared in public

Do not turn to social media when feeling depressed. Details of other people's exciting lives may bring you down further

Do not accept friends request from strangers (if you have accepted, never meet up with them)

Do not share personal information while gaming even if they offer you free games

Nobody can take your picture or upload it without your permission

Make your password really strong

Block unwanted people, calls and messages

Keep watch if children seem dependant on their online activities or seem moody

Smartphones have GPS locations attached to them so be careful when you share photographs

Block out sexually suggestive messages or chats from unwanted people

Do not delete or deactivate accounts or text. Backup information for proof

NO

Do not give in to threats, they will keep getting worse. Say no and reach out to someone who can help
